CBC Reporter Geoff Leo and Videographer Aldo Columpsi (who was raised in North Central) at the Screening of their latest documentary "Life Under Construction" following a group of NC youth in NCCA's Transitions to Trades program.

Adocumentary by CBC Saskatchewan's Geoff Leo has been named the winner of the 2013 Canada Award by the Academy of Canadian Cinema & Television.

Blind Spot: What Happened to Canada's Aboriginal Fathers? honoured for excellence in mainstream programming that reflects racial and cultural diversity of Canada. It was largely filmed in North Central Regina and sheds light on the unknown and unstudied problem of fatherlessness in the aboriginal community.

The award was presented in February at the first ever Canadian Screen Awards Television and Digital Media Awards.

The Globe and Mail called it a "powerful film" and the Regina Leader-Post hailed it as "brilliant journalism". The video can be viewed online at http://bit.ly/ACUzuQ

NATIONAL AWARDS RECOGNIZING NORTH CENTRAL HEROES!

In the heart of North Central Regina is Sacred Heart Community School, built in 1928. Ms Starla Grebinski is the Principal of Sacred Heart and has poured 7 years of her own heart into the education of the children. "There's something about this neighbourhood, I love coming to work!"

Ms. Grebinski was raised in North Central, having attended Albert School. Reviewing the staff roll call she found many who attended Sacred Heart have returned to work in the office, as teachers or in maintenance.

Sacred Heart is a reading school and offers a great program called Accelerated Reader or AR. Students read well and extensively.

Ms. G. piloted the program as a teacherlibrarian. It's now in all Catholic schools. The AR program is based on a point system, students read to earn 100 points every year. Students are told "those 100 points are yours and they are forever!" as encouragement of an achieved milestone.

The program only works with good teacher reading instruction, it's focused on reading but the attitude is catchy and has improved attendance, behaviour and attitude. AR is based on the 'old school' premise of stars or points. Instead of shiny stickers on a chart on the wall it's precisely recorded on a computer database.

Denita Stonechild's daughter attends Sacred Heart Community School. Denita observes "Ms. Grebinski is great administrator who takes the time to acknowledge the children and their parents. Her time and effort seem a natural quality she posesses toward others. She's always willing to help children and families through education, family values and the school mission statement: 'every child is treated as the Christ child."

There is a short test associated with every book, if you read the book and pass the test, you receive a point. Teachers set example by participating. T-shirts are earned at 100 points, so it's very achievement-driven.

When the AR program was implemented attendance rose by 5% - a huge increase! Reading Nights are held once a month with parents reading to children and children reading to parents. Children then take the test by computer. "Some parents never miss! It's powerful to see children and their families doing their own work to earn their own rewards."

Assemblies are held at Sacred Heart every morning. On the last day of the week children wear their yellow 100 points t-shirts. Starla says "it's jaw-dropping to see a sea of sunny yellow t-shirts gathered in the assembly."

In February, Starla Grebinski was presented with "The Learning Partnership" award for Canada's Outstanding Principals for 2013 as an exceptional educator.

age of 12. He was once told by his peewee football coach that he should focus on defence because he lacked the intelligence to play offence.

Brandon went on to play for the North Central Lakers under Coach Brian Saip who immediately recognized Brandon's talents. "Coach Saip had a method of keeping things simple.", states Coach Brandon Brooks. "Saip would start off with teaching the fundamentals and then gradually add more to what we were trying to do. He had a way of molding young football players who had very good potential, but low football IQ."

Brandon Grasdal eventually came into his own as a North Central Laker and made his mark in the competitive football scene in Regina. He is now in his final year of school at Sheldon Collegiate. He was named the Schwann Conference Running Back of the Year and he was ranked as one of the top 100 football Her daughter Roselin Stonechild agrees: "Mrs. Grebinski is kind, nice and cool!"

prospects in Canada by Top Prospects (Canada's largest recruiting base for football and basketball).

He's currently ranked #96 out of 113 of the top football players in Canada. From being told that he was not smart enough to play running back to being among the top prospects, it seems like Brandon Grasdal has made the sport of football into his own.

On February 14 a group of concerned citizens gathered behind the Territorial building to remember those we have lost in our neighbourhood due to tragedy. The gathering was a time for us to reflect as a community on safety and healing.

JAQUELINE ANAQUOD

"Things need to change! And today with you guys all standing in a circle - you're making things happen. This is how change happens in a community. It all starts with each and every one of us.

My heart goes out to all the family members that are here today. You know, I have a teenage daughter. Every time she walks out that door I have to worry. Is she going to come home? Or will she be stereotyped because she's a First Nations girl? Are they gonna think that they can do things to my daughter? Because there has been no action by the government. In the past there has been slow action by police. The community doesn't seem to care anymore.

So when I'm here today I think about my teenage daughter. And she knows everything that's going on. Do you know how hard it is for me to tell her that she's a target 'cause she's First Nations? That people are going to think less of her? That when she's walking down the street that she's approached by tricks and johns - offering her money to have sex?

That's dehumanizing our young women! And they need to be informed about that. They need to be educated. We have to let them know of what's going on. That's the only way they're going to be able to protect themselves. And they need to listen to that inner voice, that gut instinct. When you feel that something isn't right - it's not right. Turn around, walk away. I tell her that every time.

So October 4th we're planning a round dance for the families and for the women. Last year we had a feast to feed the women and this year we're going to have a round dance to dance with them. So I invite you all and if anybody wants to come and volunteer and sit on the committee - you're more than welcome to. Hiy hiy."

community! Today we take up the challenge for every one of us to be educators to a new generation. Young ones - both male and female because both of them are at risk in this society. And please just remember: Stand up! Creator gave us voice, gave us feet to stand on. Voice to use. As long as we do stuff in a good way with good intention. There's no harm intended. Hiy Hiy"

"It's true I just worry about everyone and for the families that have lost loved ones. My heart just breaks for all of you. You're really strong to be here. All we can do is pray and have this no more. We need to go after our governments and our justice system that no one is disposable. We're all sacred. We never asked to walk this journey here. And we didn't ask to walk what we're brought into this world as. So we need to honour everyone. Respect everyone. Take care of everyone. Love everyone. So that's my wish. That love can come into our community so that no one would be lost or gone from us. So thank you very much for being here."

RCMP Launches National Public Website for Missing Persons & Unidentified Remains

The RCMP's National Centre for Missing Persons and Unidentified Remains (NCMPUR) www.canadasmissing.ca is Canada's first national website designed to engage the public in reporting tips and information related to ongoing cases. "This website gives the public a chance to make a difference in finding some of Canada's missing. Each person who takes the time to visit the site could help bring a loved one home to their family," said the Honourable Vic Toews, Minister of Public Safety. Homicide Loss Support Group Available

The Greystone Bereavement Centre is now offering a Homicide Support Group for those who have experienced a loss due to homicide. This group will provide support, education, encouragement and help in a confidential and safe setting. The group will be facilitated by volunteer leaders who have experienced a homicide loss. For more information call 306.766.6949.

The second Annual North Central Community Volunteer Awards

night will be held Wednesday, May 16 at Scott Collegiate Auditorium to celebrate volunteers and recognize their contributions to our community.

Five major awards will be presented to outstanding volunteers. Winners will receive a beaded medallion, a certificate and an opportunity to participate in a role model poster campaign.

We are now accepting nominations for the following:

Volunteer of the Year Physically Active Volunteer Role Model

Volunteer Leadership Award and Best Volunteer Community Group or Team.

Preference will be given to volunteers who serve the community of North Central.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call 306-791-9888 or email projects@nccaregina.ca

We invite volunteer agencies to participate in the evening by offering entertainment. Please consider putting together a skit or musical number to showcase your agency's talents!

The first North Central Volunteer Awards was held at the Performing Arts Centre on September 20, 2012.

Nominations came from agencies like Aids Program South Saskatchewan, Indian Metis Christian Fellowship and Erhlo Sports Venture. The following volunteers were presented with awards: Marty Rothermal, Albert Scott Community Income Tax Program, Miranda Cote and Stephen McDavid.

The evening was sponsored by Conexus Credit Union, Regina Little Theatre and Loblaws.

This year, the awards will be presented in May to celebrate spring.

CATEGORIES:

Volunteer of the Year: an award to an outstanding volunteer who is dedicated and reliable

Youth Volunteer of the Year: 21 years or younger who is an outstanding volunteer

Physically Active Volunteer Role Model: one who serves through being physically active or who leads physical activity for the community

Volunteer Leadership Award: a volunteer who shows outstanding leadership qualities

Best Volunteer Community Group or Team: An award will be given to a group or team who volunteers together.

Volunteerism has the potential to transform my community!

People who volunteer:

- ✓ Boost confidence
- ✓ Increase community pride
- ✓ Build a support network
- ✓ Add references and work experience to their resume
- ✓ Develop work skills and contacts
- ✓ Gain casual work opportunities and.....

✓ Go on to bigger and better things—school, work, training and realizing their dreams!

Now Open! 2 Locations

Lynda Gellner and Kim Fruck are facilitators at the Regina Early Years Family Centre. The centres are a result of multiagency collaboration under the umbrella of the Regina Regional Intersectoral Committee (RRIC). There are two brand new centres now open at Scott Collegiate and The Gathering Place.

The Early Years Family Centres provide learning through play for both adult and child and invites visitors to join in a wide range of programs. Those programs include specialized support services around literacy and numeracy activities, social skill development, speech and language intervention and parenting classes. Prenatal and postnatal support groups support groups will also be available in the near future.

Two Early Years Family Centres are easily accessible in neighbourhoods with high need but they are open to anybody in Regina. The centres are not a daycare, rather a play and learn place for children accompanied by their family. It's all free, whether you join a playgroup or come in for set programs on science, art and reading. A speech language therapist from Four Directions Community Health Centre will stop in regularly for sessions. Parent groups can meet in a cozy family room to address issues, or simply for coffee and conversation. The teams believe in a holistic approach to child development - cognitive, spiritual and cultural - and organizers want to be representative of Regina's diverse community.

They hope to talk to parents with inter-generational issues. "We want to be here to hear, we want parents to feel safe, we want to break down stigma, establish trust." They will offer learning techniques for parents and refer them to existing programs and services for children with chronic development or health issues.

The Centre offers a chance for child caregivers to get out, be with others and share ideas. There is a gold mine of help for those who need referrals, or who need collaboration in working with Catholic and public school divisions. There is a standing invitation for other community groups to present their offerings. "Children and family are at the centre. We reach out and in for them." Said Kim Fruck, "I don't see any limits to collaborating."

These Early Years Family Centres are pilots for future locations all over the city. This year is for getting the word out and building the centres up. They will be open over the summer and the staff hopes for early evening hours and Saturdays.

Aboriginal Grandmothers Caring for Grandchildren

The Aboriginal Grandmothers Caring for Grandchildren Support Network began from a research program with First Nations University of Canada and Women and Gender Studies at U of R.

The researchers were Carrie Bourassa and Wendee Kubik, who along with Elder Betty McKenna, facilitated talking circles with grandmothers. Based on anecdotal accounts collected between 2003-05, these family units were on the increase. in prison. Tragically, some of the women are missing or have been murdered.

In one instance, a woman dropped off children at grandma's and never came back.

There are currently about 70 grandmothers within this support group. The women help each other with issues faced while raising one or "Having grandchildren keeps me young and active."

and others. They realize there is strength in numbers when they advocate together. The grandmothers get that strength and confidence from each other.

Many offerings in the system, such as child financial support or respite care (2 weeks per year) must be negotiated for on a case-by-case basis. Some grandmothers

Aboriginal Grandmothers Caring for Grandchildren hold regular monthly gatherings at Four Directions Community Health Centre or at the Lifelong Learning Centre. The usual times are from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on the second Friday of the month. The next two meetings are April 12 and May 10 at Four Directions. With advance notice the group provides taxi service there and back and childcare. And you are always welcomed with tea and bannock.

It was a traditional role of the grandmother (or Kokum) to raise the grandchildren. Now that role is confusing, you can't spoil the child. One woman notes "It's hard being a kokum these days."

The usual

cultural roles are distorted.

The current need for them to provide 24-hour care depends on the circumstances of their daughters. Some may have medical, mental health or addictions issues, others may be more youngsters. One woman cares for seven grandchildren.

"It's a hard choice-starting all over raising babies, but how could I possibly let those children go into the system?"

"It's not the joy that it should be when I hear of another baby on the way. It's sorrow."

"I can't afford to be sick."

have full custody of their grandchildren,

The Lifelong Learning Centre (U of R) co-ordinates the group and may bring in speakers or hold workshops for members. These members range from professional women to those who are raising grandchildren on their old age pension. The group gathers statements from grandmothers for future advocacy efforts. Individuals earn certificates of participation and learn about available programs and services to help themselves some have adopted the kids, some are considered foster parents. That's where advocacy comes in. The Dept. of Social Services has rules and regulations but the Kokums will tell you - it's not what they want for themselves. They want supports and activities for the children so that they have a better life. Meanwhile these women are growing older and facing their own health issues.

"Why do I like the meetings? This is all mine. It's not for the kids. It's for me." Contact: Hertha Kay LLC Outreach Program Assistant Lifelong Learning Centre University of Regina 306-585-5766 Hertha.Kay@uregina.ca

Regina Rotary donation to Project People

Adonation of $500 in the form of prepaid gift cards was made to Project People to be used to help meet the needs of individuals who are homeless, hungry or at risk.

'Project People' is a network of volunteers, donors and resources to help those who are homeless or at risk of being homeless in Regina. Project People strives to work with and support existing agencies where those agencies have identified a gap in services.

Through collaboration with the Indian Métis Christian Fellowship, one unique service proved by the volunteers is the pick up and delivery of donated furniture. They plan to use some of the Rotary gift cards to purchase gas for the donated truck that is used for this service.

Although their 'wish list' includes a bigger truck, they continually find the need to purchase items such as winter clothing or personal items such as underwear for clients, games for family gatherings, food, etc.

This is an example of how a group of volunteers can work collaboratively with existing agencies to provide a service identified by the community.

REGINA UAS committee The Urban Aboriginal Strategy (UAS) was first developed in 1997, to help respond to the needs facing Aboriginal people living in key urban centres. Through the UAS, the Government of Canada seeks to partner with other governments, community organizations and Aboriginal people to support projects that respond to local priorities.

The Regina Urban Aboriginal Strategy (RUAS) is part of a federal government initiative (UAS) that consists of a partnership with all three levels of government and urban Aboriginal people in Regina (a steering committee of 12).

The RUAS funds and recommends funding for projects in our community that increase opportunities and improve outcomes for urban Aboriginal people. As well RUAS holds workshops and other events to bring together potential partners and increase awareness. Among others, past events have included the Coffee House Conversations on Homelessness and Housing, a gathering of community to prepare a submission to the Child Welfare Review Panel and the Aboriginal Prairie Showcase. The RUAS has also recommended funding for successful Community Workers are there to help people in need. My work is to awaken people to connect with the Creator.

The Regina Urban Aboriginal Strategy priorities until March 31, 2012 were (to complement the federal priorities): Homelessness and Housing, Exit and Prevention Strategies for Gangs and Street Workers, and Family Healing and Wellness.

Look after your Homefire. If it goes out, your spirit leaves you. Elder Archie Weenie Open Sky Retreat

In 2012, UAS underwent renewal and was extended until 2014. The federal government priorities remain the same, but the RUAS needs to identify themes and priorities that meet the needs of urban Aboriginal people in Regina. On March 1, RUAS held a community consultation—including government, service providers and citizens, to determine what these needs are.

LES STEVEN BALIKO

On February 28, 2013, at the age of 66, Les passed away suddenly due to complications from metastatic melanoma. He was surrounded by his loving family.

Les volunteered for numerous organizations, including several years with North Central Community Association's Income Tax Program. Les was always excited to share his knowledge so that it benefited others. After Les died, one of the volunteers at the hospital recognized his name. She had hired him to be a tutor for people trying to obtain their GEDs. She said that Les had been one of their best teachers, and he had certainly had a positive impact on many people. To hear this would have made Les' day.

Kokum Beatrice (Northern Light Woman) Laframboise is the force behind Traditional Grandmothers Guidance Centre. Her daughter and son Evening Star and Eugene (Rising Sunn) Isaacc are the forces behind Beatrice. They've offered a safe place for the community to visit since 2007.

The family has seen the stressed and struggling people along 5th Avenue and realize they need more than a bowl of soup and a hug. At TGGC people will find prayer and smudging and someone to talk to. They feel valued because someone cares.

The centre ran language classes in the past and needs volunteer and financial help from the community to re-establish that programming. They also have a need for donated kids' clothing. Every Wednesday at noon TGGC serves soup and bannock "until the pot is empty" laughs Evening Star. They donate and prepare the ingredients and would certainly appreciate donations of groceries.

Because everyone needs the love of a Kokum.

Message from the Office

ur school is proud of our achievements during the second semester of this school year and our staff was glad to share these achievements with families through our March conferencing.

Our continued goals at Scott Collegiate are focused on literacy and numeracy. Our students have been working diligently toward continued achievement in each area. Please continue to support your Scott student's education by guiding them with motivation and assistance with their studies.

Nancy Buisson Principal

Congratulations go to our boys' and girls' basketball teams. Throughout the season they demonstrated their spirit and determination, and we are very proud of their sportsmanship and keen sense of competition. Special thanks go to Mrs. Christopherson, Mrs. Crossan-Parker and Mr. Bridgeman as coaches of the teams.

April and May are guaranteed to be busy months. There are many activities planned so be sure to check the calendar on the Scott Collegiate website regularly. You will find us at http://scottcollegiate. rbe.sk.ca/

Registration forms for the 2013-2014 school year are available at the school. We are intent on offering programming and supports that meet the needs of each and every one of our students. Choosing Scott Collegiate may be the on hand for pizzas, pastas etc... It is a great way to get more veggies into your and your children's diet!!

Veggie Packed Pizza Sauce Thebestmomontheblog.blogspot.ca

1 carrot, peeled & diced

- 1 onion, chopped
- 1/2 green pepper, seeded, chopped
- 1/2 red pepper, seeded, chopped
- 1/2 yellow pepper, seeded, chopped
- 1 stalk celery, diced
- 1 cup mushrooms, cleaned, chopped
- 1 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
- 1 tsp dried oregano
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp sea salt (optional but I find it helps to balance the sweetness of the tomato paste)
- 1 can tomato paste
- 1 can crushed tomatoes

Instructions:

- 1) Roughly chop your veggies (no need to be fussy as it will all be puréed) and place in a large bowl.
- Add garlic, oregano, salt and olive oil and mix to coat. 2)
- Spread veggies out on a cookie sheet and roast in a 450°F oven for 15-20 3) minutes.
- Remove veggies from the oven and allow to cool for 5 minutes. 4)
- 5) Add veggies to a food processor or blender and purée until smooth.
- Add tomato paste and crushed tomatoes to veggie purée and blend until smooth. 6)
- 7) Store in the fridge for up to 3 weeks.

The Boy in the Treehouse

Scott Collegiate's Theatre Project will be staging a production The Boy in the Treehouse, written by the award winning Canadian playwright, Drew Hayden Taylor. The play follows the story of Simon, a young boy who pursues a vision quest in an attempt to reclaim his mother's First Nations heritage. The Boy in the Treehouse explores the themes of family, loss, and identity along Simon's journey of selfdiscovery.

The Boy in the Treehouse will be staged in the Scott Collegiate Auditorium on Friday, May 23rd. Admission is free for everyone.

Please come and join us for an evening of theatre. If you have any questions please contact Ms. Shiplack at Scott Collegiate: 306-523-3500.

ALL NATIONS Healin' Thru Artz

All Nations Healin' Thru Artz Inc. is a Regina-based after school non-profit community arts organization.

In conjunction with Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, Saskatchewan Lotteries, Community initiatives Fund, and through a unique partnership the Healing Hearts Ministries, we have been able to offer after-school multimedia arts programming in their facility providing a positive, creative outlet and voice for youth living in and around North Central Regina.

The program is free and available to all youth (ages 13-20) living in North Central Regina; regardless of ethnicity, race, gender, religion or economic background. We encourage all to attend.

We currently offer youth the opportunity to get involved in a variety of workshops that will include crafts, acting, creative writing, film, music, dance, life skills/ cultural teachings, and a strong elder presence for support for those in the Aboriginal community. We also offer a supper from 4:00pm-5:00pm and paid transportation via cab for those who require it.

Workshops are being held Monday through Thursday from 5:00pm - 8:00pm at various locations such as the Healing Hearts Ministries, YWCA, and the Regina Performing Arts Centre.

work on graffiti murals in North Central on 3 or 4 on garages for the NC mural program. Last summer's MAG art class was tied in with the NC Community Gardens, creating a mural on the storage sea can on site at Helmi's Garden on the 900-block Garnet.

Seeing the youthful excitement in children Josh says "I've seen a lot of growth-they're picking up on the techniques I've been teaching them which makes me feel really good as a teacher. They've come back for almost all the classes. Their enthusiasm to be an artist is quite spectacular. They're really committed which is awesome because it gives them something to do on a Sunday. Maybe the potential for a career in the arts."

The average class size is 10-13 youth. Currently there are two artistic volunteers helping out-Marv Fulton and Crystal Massier. It's a relaxed environment, not heavy into structure, kids paint, wandering instructors are always there to help. Healthy snacks are served. Hey-where do I sign up?

The MacKenzie North Central Art Studio is an exciting collaboration with the North Central Community Association and the Albert Scott Community Centre. The current program is by registration only and has successfully provided free arts programming to youth since April 1, 2012. Recruitment is done through the neighbourhood schools. Children ages 11 and older can also receive registration information by contacting Wendy Winter at the Mackenzie Art Gallery at 306-584-4294.

NORTH CENTRAL COMMUNITY GARDEN PLANTING DATES!

Community Partner Garden Fun Day Thursday, May 30th

Community Garden Work Bee Saturday, June 1st

Both events will have registration at Albert-Scott Community Centre between 10:00 and 10:30 a.m.

THANK YOU TO ARTS CARES STUDENTS who helped at NCCA:

Ruth Easton, 2nd year, Environmental Studies and International Studies

Sarah Manoah, 2nd year, Social Work

The MacKenzie Art Gallery hopes this program will continue and grow. My dream as the Mackenzie Educator responsible for the Youth Art Program, is to provide free arts programming in North Central everyday of the week. Perhaps one day we could see the opening of an art studio for youth in the neighbourhood, and for youth from across the city who will want to come to North Central because it is epicentre of youth artistic activity in the City of Regina.

IFOOT CARE

RANDOM GOOD DEED

Our Roving Reporter saw a few young boys walking to a bus stop. They came a across a person in a car stuck in a snow bank. The boys pushed the driver out and gave each other high-fives. They then realized they missed the bus. The person they rescued offered the boys a ride. Now that's helping one another!

Have you witnessed a neighbourly deed? Send it in for publication in the June issue of NCCC. e-mail: editor@ nccaregina.ca or phone the office: (306) 791-9888.

Foot Care Services BACK IN BUSINESS! We are now accepting new clients for office or home visits!

Ty spouse and I both have diabetes and it is important to look after our feet. We had been going to a spa for pedicures as we did not know anywhere else to go. I saw an ad in the North Central News stating that the Community Centre at Albert-Scott offered foot care at a cost much less than the spas, so we decided to try the service. The two ladies there were very professional and did good jobs on our feet. My feet are especially sensitive and I do not like sitting too long to have my feet looked after. I found the service very quick and I really did not have time to complain about them taking too long on my feet.

- Free diabetes checks
- Free blood pressure monitoring
- · Foot Care by a trained professional, at a minimal cost

RATES for Foot Care:

In office visit – North Central Resident$15.00 Home visit – North Central Resident$20.00 In office visit – Non North Central Resident$20.00* Home visit – Non North Central Resident$25.00*

We have continued to use this service and will continue to go there as long as they are available. We live in North Central and are not far from Scott so it is very convenient for us.

Care & Share Seniors Lunch

I want to thank the anonymous Santa/Group who came by Christmas Eve with wrapped gifts for the kids. They were tickled beyond belief Christmas morning, and the whole family (including our visitors) were very touched at the gesture of being given such wonderful and unexpected gifts-they were very appreciated and totally helped to make our Christmas morning special. Thanks. The Gabriel Family

The Transition to Trades Graduation

By Maxton Priebe

After months of hard work, sweat and the no doubt occasional bruised thumb it was a night of celebration for the graduates of the 2013 Transition to Trades program. Clearly both the instructors and six graduates had overcome many challenges and hardships in order to reach such a defining point; as a mixed sense of pride and excitement filled the dining hall.

This was a time for laughter, pizza and prizes as the group looked back over their time together with fondness, whilst keeping their eyes fixed firmly on the future. Putting it in perspective, new graduate Janelle explains, 'We all learnt so much and while we still have a long way to go, I now feel confident knowing I'm headed in a good direction'.

Confidence in the program was hardly unwarranted, with a fantastic employment rate of 100% for students. Snapped up by eager and impressed employers, some students were even invited to join the workforce ahead of schedule! In addition to this new found confidence in their technical ability, it was clear the personal growth and family bond that had developed amongst students and staff exceeded textbook standards.

Mentors and Program Managers Mike Allen and Dwayne Ripplinger proudly bestowed the graduates with their trade certifications, regaling the audience with hilarious personal insights, while imparting touching final words of advice and encouragement for each graduate. 'It's been quite a journey and I'm just so proud to see them all here to celebrate this achievement', beamed Program Manager Mike Allen. No doubt there was a long and exciting road ahead for these accomplished young graduates, but the one question on everyone's lips was who was going to take home the trophy for the evening's highly anticipated ten pin bowling after party?
