The event's theme was 'perspectives', and there are many about our neighbourhood. Not all perspectives are accurate but they are varied. Each of us have experienced this community differently and people from outside the neighbourhood have their own opinion. The hope for this event is that we, as neighbours, and other residents from Regina have spent an afternoon together to broaden perspectives on North Central.

Think about 100 years ago when the city was only 10 years old. 100 years ago, Regina had about 30,000 people. The Albert Library branch (not the current building) was established only a year after the great tornado for $2,200. People travelled on foot, by bicycle, on the streetcar. It was a very different world. The branch has moved a few times, but the one thing that hasn't changed is that the Albert branch has always been a true neighbourhood centre. A welcoming, warm place, a gathering place for kids, youth, adults, seniors. Everybody who comes through these doors is welcome!

Wendy Sinclair, the Branch Head of Albert Library has been with this community hub for 22 years.

The library has had peaks and valleys of attendance and usage over the decades. I asked how business has been like in the last 10 years or so?

WS: We took a look at the demographics in the community and it has a very high aboriginal population. So the Library Committee stated that this library should truly reflect the needs of the community it serves so that means creating a welcoming environment, have the aboriginal artwork on the walls. One library committee member Theresa Stevenson said 'have brown faces behind the desk, make sure staff smiles at people when they come in, perhaps offer them a cup of tea.'

Through the library committee we obtained a $10,000 grant to offer aboriginal-based programming. Our circulation doubled within that year, so we knew that this was the direction that we should be going. Through the Provincial Library all public libraries in SK get a grant to improve their library services for the actual community. So we started offering Aboriginal-based programming. We consulted with the community in terms of what that should look like and so it really changed the dynamics of this branch. Now we offer everything from making powwow outfits to taking youth out to a reserve to making hand drums. Taking urban people out to sweats if they may not otherwise have access.

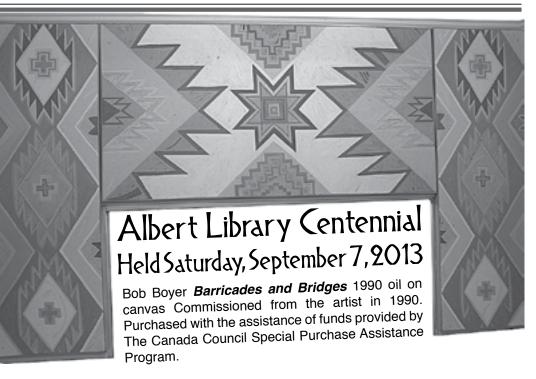

presented papers in Norway, New Zealand, Australia, the U.S., Sweden. We've actually become really well-known worldwide in libraries. We've hosted people twice from New Zealand, once from Australia. We just had a woman from the University of Toronto come and say 'wow, you're serving an Aboriginal community and this is how it's done.' They're amazed!

NCCC: Did you instigate that 22 years ago?

WS: It really was the library committee and the support of Regina Public Library administration. You come up with ideas, but if you're not supported—they said 'Let's do it!'

NCCC: And they must be very proud of this branch and what it's accomplished—the love from the community is very evident today.

WS: We're not your typical library, where you expect people to come in, we do a lot of outreach. We take the library to where the community is. And if people see us out there they're going to identify with us. So they'll feel more comfortable coming into the library. We do programming with all the schools and the daycares. Lots of partnerships, for example with the fire department where they read books to kids.

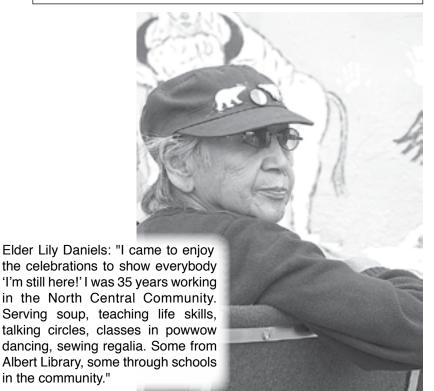

MC Rob Deglau, Executive Director of North Central Community Association: "People look at North Central in so many different ways. They give it different names: they call it 'the Hood' or 'Canada's Worse Neighbourhood', but it's home to 11,000 people. North Central is the size of the City of Estevan!

There are that many people. We have different schools, different denominations of churches it's a city within a city. The people who are here love the neighbourhood. I grew up in this neighbourhood, I'm still wearing my Scott Collegiate ring. I remember going to Albert School and coming here to the Albert Library to do my homework and now I get to celebrate the hundred years as an adult!

In 1998 Albert Library brought in a computer lab and facilitator with the support from Regina Public Libraries. This library has changed things so the youth can learn a different type of literacy."

Elder Norma Jean Byrd: "There are many aspects of our society that are not healthy for our children, so you need to be aware and involved as parents. I want this community to grow strong, to grow healthy. That takes all of us, we are role-models for these children."

NCCC: The branch has a bit of an international reputation.

WS: Because of our uniqueness of serving a community with a high Aboriginal population, members of the library committee have NCCC: There must be youth whom you've met when they were this high, now grown up? Isn't that fun?

WS: We say that if they can open the front doors that they're more than welcome to come in. Then we see them grow up and we lose them as teenagers—but they come back as adults when they have kids of their own.

They recognize how much the library has meant to them—a constant over all their years.

So that's how we know we're successful. It's just a very proud moment to be celebrating our 100 years in our community.

The day was celebrated with Rainbow Powow Dance Troupe, button making, Bionic Bannock Boys, face painting by Street Culture and a barbeque.

The following is an essay written by a 15 year old girl, it illustrates how we as a community can learn from the perspectives of our youth.

Jealousy and Anger

ealousy is an emotion that gives Jyou negative thoughts and feelings of insecurity, fear, and anxiety. Anger is an emotion that makes you feel offended, wronged, or denied. If you feel you're jealous and angry you shouldn't do anything to risk getting in trouble, take a time out to think about it and calm yourself down. There are many types of jealously and anger but there are things you can do to stay calm. Instead of taking things into your own hands talk to someone. I know you feel like screaming and doing something you shouldn't but you shouldn't do that, go for a walk or take a deep breath. Don't speak while you're angry, you'll regret some of the things you said so stop and think before you speak. Think of the possible solutions that could help you feel not angry. Once you're calm express your anger without hurting others or trying to control them. When you're jealous think of why you feel jealous in the first place, is it worth it? Do you feel jealous for a good reason? It's never okay to feel jealous even though everyone is at one point. It's not healthy for you if you keep stressing over something/someone. Think about who it's affecting. When you're jealous think about what you have and what you should be thankful for. Being jealous could make you sad and depressed. It's best to not take things into your own hands when you're jealous or angry because there will be consequences for your actions.

The Regina Alternative Measures Program

RAMP is culturally sensitive with a focus on restorative justice principles. We promote respectful relationships and encourage harmony within our communities.

Introducing our new University of Regina practicum student, Romni

wo years ago, having been graduated from high school for nine years, I was at a point in my life where I was ready to go back to school. I knew that I wanted a career within the justice system that would allow me the opportunity to help people, but I was unsure of what that job was. I made an appointment with a career counsellor and he brought up Restorative Justice (RJ), an alternative method of dealing with crime that was gaining increased respect and credit within the justice system. He explained that RJ focuses on harm, harm creates obligations, and obligations are dealt with or "put right" by offenders, and in some cases, with the participation of the victim and the community (Zehr, 2002). The principles of RJ intrigued me because I have witnessed the impact and benefit that positive relationships, a second chance, and taking responsibility can offer a person: the opportunity to be a part of a profession that assists or guides people towards the reparation of harm is exactly what I want out of a career. I am now in my second year of a Human Justice Degree with a concentration in Criminal/Restorative Justice and feel blessed to have found a program that has captured my interest. I am currently doing my practicum with RAMP and am thankful for the opportunity to be a part of RJ practices in action; for instance, being in a position to sit in on court, intakes and mediation will demonstrate how RAMP and other RJ organizations look at each case individually to decide upon the appropriate means to repair harm while meeting the needs of victims, offenders and the community.

A common misconception of RJ is that it is offender-focused; however, the victim plays a crucial role and may see numerous benefits from a RJ approach. Victim involvement, whether through a victim advocate or the victim themselves, in the alternative measures process will guarantee that the victim's voice will be represented. RJ practices, such as mediation or a community justice forum, allow the victim to be heard by the community and the offender; as a result, both the offender and the victim may experience a positive outcome. For instance, the victim's storytelling may promote remorse, empathy and offender accountability by means of "encouraging offenders to understand the impact of their behavior...[and] urging them to take steps to put things right as much as possible" (Zehr, 2002, p.16). The victim may simultaneously experience healing through the acknowledgement of harm they have experienced and through sharing their story; in addition to emotional healing, the reparation of harm may occur when a victim's needs are met through restitution-whether a donation, community service work, or an apology. To summarize, victim involvement in the Restorative Justice process is crucial as it serves to benefit the victim themselves, the offender and the community.

Real reckon Real Silkscreening: Art-Making, Silkscreening and Alternative Community Development: RAMP & H.E.A.T Program and Arts facilitator Kallie Garcia

Kallie Garcia is an artist who is interested in facilitating community-based art projects and social justice in working with those in conflict with the law. The "Real reckon Real" Program provides weekly silk-screening workshops to youth and young adults in the Regina community. The goal of this program is to allow participants to explore the power of identity and self-awareness through alternative forms of visual mediums, such as drawing, sillkscreening and filmmaking. Though these newly learned skills participants will develop a positive understanding as well as a connection to culture and community. Weekly workshops and different art projects will help youth and young adults connect their inner voice to art making, each other and themselves by creating their own visual narratives.

Real reckon Real program takes place on Wednesday and Friday evening from 4-7 pm and is located at the YMCA, 2400 13th Ave, Regina.

National Restorative Justice Week

ational Restorative Justice Week 2013 will be held November 17th to 24th. The theme for this year is "Inspiring Innovation." This theme encourages an inspired approach to justice. This can be done by learning from new and innovative approaches to restorative justice. The Regina Alternative Measures Program encourages and promotes restorative justice within our community and within our own lives. RAMP is always open to learning new and creative ways to implement restorative justice practices within our current processes. RAMP also encourages individuals within our community to learn more about restorative justice and to be open to exploring the possibilities that restorative justice can provide. Educate yourself on this issue and help make our community stronger!

For more information please contact Aaron Froh at (306)352-5424.

Participants are free to express themselves and communicate through alternative forms of visual mediums, such as drawing, silkscreening and filmmaking

RÉSUMÉ WORKSHOP

RAMP will be holding a résumé workshop on November 7, at 4:00 pm, for youth ages 12-17. This workshop will assist in learning what goes into a résumé and how to format it. In addition, you will learn tips and tricks on how to find a job and keep it. Please contact Charlotte at 352-5424 to reserve your seat by October 29.

Report Crimes Online

The Regina Police Service now has a Citizens Online Police Reporting System. (Emergency situations are advised to call 911.) Using this online citizen police report system allows you to submit a report immediately and print a copy of your statement to police for free.

You are asked to confirm a checklist to find out if online citizen police report filing is right for you:

- Is this an Emergency?
- Did the incident occur outside Regina city limits?
- Is there suspect information?
- Did this occur on a Provincial Highway?
- Is the incident in progress?
- Are there witnesses to the crime?

If you answered NO to all of the above questions, you can file your report online. If you answered YES to any of the above questions or have any other inquires you can consult the Online Citizen Police Report Frequently Asked Questions.

Youth Justice Fund Guns, Gangs & Drugs

The Youth Justice Fund provides grants and contributions to projects that encourage a more effective youth justice system, respond to emerging youth justice issues and enable greater citizen and community participation in the youth justice system.

The Fund supports the development, implementation, and evaluation of pilot projects that provide programming and services for youth in conflict with the law. It supports professional development activities, such as training and conferences, for justice professionals and youth service providers. Funding from the Youth Justice Fund is now available for the Guns, Gangs and Drugs component, which responds to youth involved in the justice system and involved in, or vulnerable to, gun, gang, and drug activities. It promotes the provision of community-based educational, cultural, sporting, and vocational opportunities to these youth to allow them to make "smart choices" and resist gang involvement or exit gangs.

Regina Humane Society The Animal Well-Fair

On a sunny Sunday in August occupied the field by Albert-Scott Community Centre. They welcomed over 600 people, including children and 'fur-babies' to the Animal Well-Fair. It was an afternoon of free fun and a chance for families in the North Central community to take home free pet food, collars, leashes and lots of other pet care items. Many inquired about subsidized sterilization services through the Spay & Neuter Program.

NCCC: Unfortunately North Central Regina seems to be keeping the Regina Humane Society in business. Have you seen the numbers improve?

DS: Yes we've seen the numbers improve which is absolutely fantastic. With the subsidized sitting in the car with the windows rolled up! You're not going to sit in the car yourself with the windows rolled up or even partially down. There's no way you'd do that, so don't do it to your pet!

It's unfortunate, the way the laws work, it gets confusing as to what you can do. The way the laws in Saskatchewan are set up is-we can't actually do anything until the animal is in distress. This is really unfortunate because it becomes a situation where our officers have to stand there and wait for the animal to be having difficulty. At that point we can break in, so when people see that, we say 'give us a call' we'll come out as soon as we can (we get so many calls it's hard to get to them all) But if you can stick around then hopefully you can help out. As far as being prosecuted for on the government's priority list. If people want it to change, you contact your MLA, you write articles about it, you talk about it. That's what gets a law to change, to move it up on the list. Saskatchewan is so far down on our animal welfare laws, compared to other places, even compared to Manitoba, right next door. Hopefully it will change soon.

We don't want to be seen in North Central or any other community as the 'animal police'. That's part of what we do, but a big part is education, compassion for animals and for people. And it's great to see people coming out and having a good time. They're happy, we're happy and I hope their pets will be happy with all the stuff we're giving away today.

spay-neuter program, we know that's making a big impact. As of this date, the numbers of animals coming in is lower than it has been for years, which is really nice. We're also fortunate in that we microchip and tattoo the animals-so if we do find an animal stray we're able to return it home before it even has to come into the shelter. Through the education programs that we deliver people in communities across Regina are saying we want to make sure our animals are healthy and they're just keeping a better eye on them!"

breaking into a car to get a dog out on a hot day—you could check with the police and find that the incidents of prosecution are very, very low. I would love to test the theory but that is the law. But I don't think anybody would hold it against you, especially if an animal's in distress. It's unthinkable that you would leave an animal in a situation like that. "Over 600 children and adults joined us for an afternoon of food, fun, and furry friends. A very special thank you goes to SaskEnergy, Face FX Face Painting, Big Dog 92-7,Kaos Dogsports, and A1 Rental-Alls for helping us make this year's Animal Well-Fair our best one yet. We can't wait for next year!"

Mika Vixamar age 11/2 years playing Ring Toss

"Sadly this summer our number of calls about dogs in cars has gone up. In part, we like to think it's because people are noticing it. People aren't putting up with it and they're calling us but it seems to still be a really large problem. It's one that we really can't figure out because we know you love your pet and we know you want to take it out with you but when it's really hot—leave them home where it's nice and cool! You're not going to leave your grandma NCCC: are we on the way to changing those laws?

DS: I think that we are, but it hasn't been anything that's been

The Design Continues

The main partners in the North Central Shared Facility, assisted by the architectural design team, are hard at work designing the new facility.

Designing and building a facility as large and complex as this one takes time, and a lot of work! The integrated approach to services in the facility makes this a more complex process than normal. P3 Architecture Partnership is leading the process, and conducted an intense set of design workshops in the spring and early summer to sort out many details. Many aspects of the design have been resolved, and their challenge now is to create a set of construction documents that contractors can use to actually build the facility. The process is on track to go to public tender early in the new year.

For the last decade many of the agencies and governments that serve North Central have recognized the benefits of integration: if they were able to build programs and services together they would provide better service to residents. Integrated approaches to issues have occasionally been undertaken in response to a pressing issue in the community. But they have been approached as projects-with limited scope and life-span. Typically after several years the interest and energy of the project shifts to other priorities and they fade away, and pulling the partners back together often needs another crisis issue -requires substantial effort. The goal of the Shared Facility is to incorporate integrated approaches into everyday life within the facility. These approaches will become the norm not the exception, and the connections between the partners will become permanent rather than occasional.

Together We're Building Our Community

Allen Lefebvre • Project Coordinator • North Central Shared Facility

Organizations have been talking about the benefits of integration for years, and this facility moves from talk to action. It will create a facility designed for this purpose, creating a unique environment that adds value to how the community is served-a place that residents of North Central will be proud to call their own.

Message from the Scott Collegiate Office

elcome to another year at Scott Collegiate! We are thrilled to be the new Principal and Vice-Principal and are honoured to get to be a part of the North Central Community and the excitement as the North Central Shared Facility moves forward.

Shannon Fayant I am so excited to be at Scott

Collegiate in the Principal role. I have been an educator for many years. Some of the schools I worked in are McDermid, Douglas Park, Thomson, Cochrane, and Wascana as a teacher, Vice-Principal and Principal. I am a firm believer in empowering our students to be all that they can taught in rural Saskatchewan, internationally in Cambodia, and spent the last 3 years as Vice-Principal at Henry Braun School here in Regina. I am excited by the possibilities for our students as we look forward to the North Central Shared Facility and all of the ways our students can work in partnership with the community.

Paul Martin Entrepreneurship Class returns to Scott Collegiate

The Entrepreneurship program at Scott is a partnership between the Martin Aboriginal Education Initiative, The Regina and District Chamber of Commerce, and Regina Public Schools. Each partner in the program assists and supports the teacher and students to ensure the best Entrepreneurship training with a focus on Aboriginal success through mentorship and business modeling. The program provides two credits over two semesters, an Entrepreneurship 30 credit and a 30 level Special Credit. At the end of the class, students participate in a business trade show, and a Dragons Den business competition.

This year, a new group of bright young students will begin their entrepreneurship careers by having some fun. Students in entrepreneurship become goodwill ambassadors for the school, doing things like community outreach, fundraising, and learning about leadership, all the while working towards the development of their own small business.

Grade 11 Project

Grade 11 Project is where technology meets literature. In this Project, students meet for two hours daily for one semester to obtain a Communications Media credit and an English Language Arts credit. Grade 11 Project is a particularly exciting course because technology is constantly evolving so the course must also evolve with it.

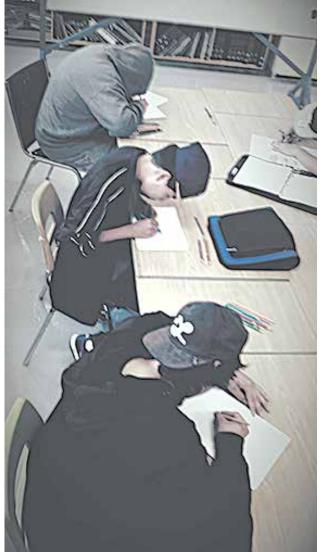

Students get the opportunity to work with a variety of new and engaging technologies and apply them in meaningful ways. Some of the major projects associated with this course include making a movie trailer with iMovie, creating a stop motion short film with iStopMotion, staging a photo exhibition, filming and producing an interview with Movie Maker, creating a video resume, and recording a radio commercial. This has been a very successful project for the last few years at Scott; students find their work interesting and relevant to their lives. Since youth today are often so knowledgeable about the new advances in technology we, as teachers, are really looking forward to what we can learn from our students.

Theatre Project

Theatre Project is a combination class of English Language Arts, Drama, and Theatre Arts. The Theatre Project runs every afternoon in the first semester. Students from grades 10 and 11 explore theatre through literature, dramatic expression and hands-on creative work. In this project students work to stage a full-length play. They audition for roles, rehearse scenes, perform in front of an audience, construct sets, complete backstage duties, run a light and sound board, and publicize their show. Students look forward to showing their learning and celebrating their success with multiple performances of their final production for their peers, other schools, and the community.

Watch for information to come regarding our upcoming performance this December.

Mentors such as Green Roots Sustainable Living president, Bruno Hernani, work with students to brainstorm, problem solve and plan, as well as provide a supporting ear for students in the program. Teachers, Tanja Maxie and Jori Cachene, are excited to watch students become leaders in the community. For more information or to be involved call (306) 523-3500.

Freedom of Art, Direction of Science (FADS Project)

As part of our ongoing commitment to making learning an engaging and real world activity, we have developed a new project at Scott Collegiate. The Freedom of Art, Direction of Science project (FADS), combines Visual Art and Science to create some fun and engaging experiences. Students use the content learned in science to create colourful and unique art pieces. Most recently students looked at the art work of science illustrators and how they use their art to communicate and document their findings. During this time, they also learned to how to use microscopes and did some studies of pond water. The end product is some stunning science illustrations of the little creatures found in the local pond water. Teachers Peter Grasdal and Jori Cachene hope that this is the beginning of a project that will eventually find funding to bring in researchers in science and sustainability as well as local artists to work with the students. For more information or to be involved call (306) 523-3500.

Big Wheels in Regina had humble beginnings in NC

Dutch Cycle celebrated their 50th Anniversary this past July. They are the longest running shop in the city under one family.

Dutch Cycle began in 1963 in Fritz (Fred) Vandelinden's shop out of his garage at 4th Avenue and Elphinstone Street in North Central. It has been operated by four generations of the Vandelinden family.

By way of celebration, Dutch Cycle held a free draw for a new Electra cruiser bicyle. North Central resident Emma stopped by with her son to check her ticket number and found she was the lucky winner! Her bike was stolen earlier in the year so this was a very happy 'full cycle' thank you. Enjoy your new bike Emma!!

Congratulations Circle Project on 25 years of service to the Community

excerpt from Circle Project website:

Today's Circle Project Assoc. Inc. is an urban-based, Aboriginal organization that provides programs and services in Regina and surrounding areas. Although our program participants are both Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal, our main focus is working with Aboriginal people in a communitybased setting. The Council (Board of Directors) maintains an Aboriginal majority as part of the mandate.

Programs and services are delivered through an integrated program model, which was developed by the Circle Project in 1997. The linkage of programs creates a network of services, which serve as stepping stones for vulnerable individuals and families as they work toward independence and sustainability.

The Circle Project has been operating since 1988. It is supported by the Archdiocese of Regina, City of Regina, Regina United Way, Provincial Departments, Service Clubs and the community at large. We are a non-profit charity. (For full history, visit www. circleproject.ca/history.htm)

Seasonal influenza: It's serious

Seasonal influenza is a serious respiratory illness that can lead to severe complications and even cause death. Immunization remains the best way to fight influenza. Immunization can lower your chances of getting influenza or if you do get influenza after being vaccinated, you may not be as sick.

You can have the influenza virus and not be ill, but still pass the disease on to others. The Regina Qu'Appelle Health Region (RQHR) encourages you to get your seasonal influenza immunization to protect yourself and those around you. The vaccine is safe, easily accessible and has very few side effects. The RQHR provides seasonal influenza vaccine to residents at no direct cost. Those at highest risk for influenza disease are: persons ages 65 and over; those diagnosed with chronic lung or heart disease, diabetes, lowered immunity, cancer, kidney disease and/or severe anemia; pregnant women; children from six months to four years of age; persons with severe obesity; and residents of a nursing home or other care facility.

RQHR encourages all people to be immunized. For clinic times and dates in your area, call your public health office as of October and watch your newspaper. For general information on influenza, please call HealthLine at 811.

North Central Health Fair & BBQ

The 5th Annual Health Fair was held on August 21 at the Albert Scott Community Centre. About 375 health-conscious citizens took in the Diabetes Risk Assessment, viewed the health booths, enjoyed the children's fun activities and a healthy BBQ.

Brie Hnetka is the Manager of Programs and Partnerships with the Canadian Diabetes Assoc. (CDA). She told NCCC: "Diabetes is more prevalent, both within Aboriginal and lower-income communities. The goal of this event is to try to raise that awareness so that people take the initiative to go see their doctor and get screened. We urge you to become aware of some of the signs and symptoms as well as your risk factors. If you know you're at risk you can request a blood glucose test."

"This health fair lets you to talk to the community partners and the services and the diabetes educators to learn how to prevent or prolong the onset of diabetes with a healthy lifestyle. If you can change your diet to be healthier and include some physical activity it will go a long way to preventing or prolonging diabetes."

Brie continued, "Unfortunately diabetes will continue to increase. Currently there are about 85,000 people in Saskatchewan living with diabetes. By 2020, 110,000 is predicted. A lot of it is genetic, but if we can educate people on how to live well with diabetes—it's key. You can live a long, healthy life if you manage your diabetes well." The terrible part about diabetes is all the complications arising from it. If you can live healthy (be on top of your medication, get your exercise in, eat well) you can protect the blood vessels so that those complications, like blindness, heart, kidney disease and amputations, can't happen.

CDA says it's an epidemic and growing at an alarming rate.

"It's a year-long process to plan the Health Fair," says Brie. "NCCA has been an amazing partner and all of the community partners have played a very important role."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 6:30 p.m. Albert Scott Rec Centre Kari Herbert, Renew Project Coordinator

ver the summer, the Renew Project cleaned 14 alleys, and combined with painting blitzes to cover almost 300 garages and 40 fences. We cleaned graffiti off of about 250 rollout garbage carts. We had amazing support from residents and great partnerships with groups like Rainbow Youth Centre's Road to Employment, and John Howard RAMP Society. Over 80 different residents came out to help as well as almost 50 different non-residents (some of these people helped multiple times!). The Renew Project was so successful the city has decided to support us further and expanded the graffiti cleaning initiative and reporting process awareness campaign city-wide.

Every success also has its hardships. The Renew Project went into these alleys and worked extremely hard and transformed them. So it is disheartening to go back and see some of these alleys back to being filled with garbage and large items being left in them once again. It is difficult, knowing how many people who came out from those blocks to work so hard to make a difference. It is hard to imagine how they must feel to see it back to the state it was before the Renew Project worked in it. Every resident has a personal responsibility to keep their yards clean and to not throw large items out into the alleys. This hurts the entire block and community. We are trying to Renew North Central and it takes all of us to ensure we are doing our part. Respect your neighbours, respect your community. Help Renew North Central.

There will be a townhall meeting on October 16th, at 6:30 pm at Albert-Scott Community Centre for all residents who want to work towards Renewing North Central. This is in partnership with major property owners in the area, as well as the City of Regina. I encourage all residents to come and to have a voice in where we go from here. Let's work together to meet this goal of a safer, cleaner North Central!

Flaman Trailer & Saskatchewan Construction Assoc. retrofits Transition to Trades trailer

We were delighted and overwhelmed by the support of the Saskatchewan Construction Association (SCA), who delivered a generous donation for our recent Transition to Trades program equipment robbery. SCA President, Mark Cooper (pictured with NCCA Director, Rob Deglau) visited us on behalf of Industry partners and members, awarding a donation of $5000 plus commitments of tool contributions to help replace the tools stolen over the summer. We sincerely thank Mark, the SCA, and its partners for their commitment and support of the Transition to Trades program.
